

Mad about \"Mad Men\"

Heidi Schlumpf | Aug. 18, 2009 NCR Today

The back-to-school displays are out, leaves are starting to drop from trees, and "Mad Men [1]," the Emmy-award winning AMC series about a fictional New York ad agency, is back. Ah, fall.

Much was made about last season's Catholic storyline involving a priest (played by Tom Hanks' son) who counsels an advertising copywriter who had abandoned a baby who was the result of a one-night stand with a coworker. The season premier on Sunday night didn't do much with that angle, but it did set the stage for another season of what I call "mid-century modern sinning" in my review of the series for NCR here [2].

Other Catholic fans of the series include Father Jim Martin, S.J. at America [3], Deacon Greg Kandra at The Deacon's Bench [4] and Thomas Hibbs at Inside Catholic [5].

Source URL (retrieved on 01/31/2015 - 23:24): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/mad-about-mad-men>

Links:

[1] <http://www.amctv.com/originals/madmen/>

[2] <http://ncronline.org/news/mad-men-truly-catholic-storyline>

[3] http://www.americamagazine.org/blog/entry.cfm?blog_id=2&id=3E8EDE6C-1321-AEAA-D39D78DE3825E0EA

[4] <http://deacbench.blogspot.com/2008/08/catholicism-of-mad-men.html>

[5]

http://insidecatholic.com/Joomla/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6670&Itemid=100