

Real impact of African Synod may come inside the Church

John L. Allen Jr. | Oct. 27, 2009 NCR Today

By JOHN L. ALLEN JR.

If there's one big idea that seemed to surface at the nearly monthlong Synod for Africa in Rome, it was a call to take women more seriously -- in society, and also in the church. In keeping with the candor exhibited throughout the synod about the church's need to confront its own failures, the bishops called for, among other things, new structures to foster decision-making authority by women in the church.
