

Unions (and Wisconsin Voters) Push Back

Michael Sean Winters | Apr. 1, 2011 | Distinctly Catholic

Wisconsin voters have collected [1] more than enough signatures to mount a recall effort against one of several GOP state senators being targeted for a recall election because they supported the effort of Gov. Scott Walker to attack collective bargaining rights.

Reaction, in both senses of the word, produces a counter-reaction.

The GOP over-reach in Wisconsin is proving to be just that, an over-reach. Elected because of a dreary economic climate, the GOP mis-interpreted its mandate to mount a full-scale attack on fundamental rights. Americans don't like that. And, in a democracy, the people have the power to make the GOP pay for its over-reach. On Wisconsin!

Source URL (retrieved on 01/26/2015 - 14:57): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/unions-and-wisconsin-voters-push-back>

Links:

[1] http://lacrossetribune.com/news/local/article_d5240e94-5c0c-11e0-b582-001cc4c002e0.html