

Former Beatle and family start campaign to target pollution, world hunger

Sharon Abercrombie | Feb. 14, 2012 Eco Catholic

Here's something worth considering for Lenten reading.

Former Beatle Sir Paul McCartney and his two daughters, Stella and Mary, have started the Meat Free Monday campaign [1], which addresses pollution, better health, the ethical treatment of animals and global hunger.

They have also contributed to a new cookbook, The Meat Free Monday Cookbook [2]. It features more than 300 seasonal vegetarian recipes. One of them appears in the March 2012 issue of The Vegetarian Times [3].

Source URL (retrieved on 03/09/2014 - 08:22): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/eco-catholic/former-beatle-and-family-start-campaign-target-pollution-world-hunger>

Links:

[1] <http://www.meatfreemondays.com>

[2] <http://www.amazon.com/Meat-Free-Monday-Cookbook-Every/dp/1906868697>

[3] <http://www.vegetariantimes.com>