

How wrong is wrong?

Zoe Ryan | May. 2, 2012 NCR Today

According to NPR's story, "Psychology Of Fraud: Why Good People Do Bad Things":

In general, when we think about bad behavior, we think about it being tied to character: Bad people do bad things. But that model, researchers say, is profoundly inadequate.

Read more of the story on the NPR website [1].

In the same thread, This American Life recently had a segment on degrees of sin and making bad decisions. Find the audio by clicking here [2].

Source URL (retrieved on 01/29/2015 - 14:43): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/how-wrong-wrong>

Links:

[1] <http://www.npr.org/2012/05/01/151764534/psychology-of-fraud-why-good-people-do-bad-things>

[2] <http://www.thisamericanlife.org/>