

More Wisdom from Berkowitz

Michael Sean Winters | Nov. 21, 2012 Distinctly Catholic

Peter Berkowitz, writing at RealClearPolitics [1], has an essay about freedom of expression and the way it is threatened in our culture, especially at our colleges and universities. I have as little use for the censors of the left as for the censors of the right, and Berkowitz is on to something. Of course, a propos of my previous post on Father Zuhlsdorf, let me note that a little negative freedom is a good thing, and only worrisome when it becomes the exclusive understanding of freedom.

Source URL (retrieved on 01/27/2015 - 17:28): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/more-wisdom-berkowitz>

Links:

[1]

http://www.realclearpolitics.com/articles/2012/11/21/the_imperiled_freedom_the_candidates_ignored_116215.html