

We must always remember the suffering of each person

Mary Ann McGivern | Apr. 22, 2013 NCR Today

The New York Times [1] ran a commentary [1] -- really a phone monologue -- from a Guantanamo prisoner a couple of weeks ago.

In our frenzied focus on the Boston Marathon bombing on top of wars and gun violence, it is easy to turn minds from the sorrow and suffering of a single man. It is hard to bear the burden of testimony to our own hard hearts.

Source URL (retrieved on 01/29/2015 - 06:30): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/we-must-always-remember-suffering-each-person>

Links:

[1] http://www.nytimes.com/2013/04/15/opinion/hunger-striking-at-guantanamo-bay.html?nl=todaysheadlines&emc=edit_th_20130415