

Happy (Belated) B'day MOJ

Michael Sean Winters | Apr. 29, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

I finally had a bit of time this weekend to clean-up my old emails and I came across one that reminded me that earlier this month, the blog Mirror of Justice [1] celebrated its 9th birthday.

I found MOJ to be an indispensable resource in trying to make sense of the issues surrounding the HHS contraception mandate. I am happy to say that some of the writers there, Rick Garnett and Rob Vischer and Tom Berg, are people I have come to consider friends, even if they are also sometimes sparring partners. MOJ is a site where you will always learn something, even if the thing you learn is that you profoundly disagree with something they post. Check it out. And, to the many writers who post there, ad multos annos!

Source URL (retrieved on 02/01/2015 - 11:02): <http://ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/happy-belated-bday-moj>

Links:

[1] <http://mirrorofjustice.blogs.com/mirrorofjustice/2013/04/happy-9th-birthday-to-moj-on-moral-anthropology-and-the-law.html>