

Camosy on Ireland's Abortion Laws

Michael Sean Winters | May. 10, 2013 | Distinctly Catholic

At the Washington Post's "On Faith," blog [1], Charles Camosy looks at the abortion laws in Ireland and explains how Ireland is one of the safest place for pregnant women on the planet. The money quote: "Even after the malpractice which led to Savita's horrible death, Ireland remains one of the safest places in the world for pregnant women. It is a great example of a developed country which refuses to choose between women and their prenatal children. They are not only on the right side of justice, they are on the right side of history."
