

by Tracy Abeln

View Author Profile
tabeln@ncronline.org

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

February 21, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily provides insight on recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

The unprecedented Vatican meeting of bishop leaders to discuss clergy sex abuse and its cover-up gets underway in Rome Feb. 21. Here's a report leading up to it.

Read: Survivors disappointed to not meet Francis; call Vatican summit conversational

With the unending flood of stories on this, new details emerge that hint at progress.

Read: N.J. priest at Vatican, removed in 2018, was accused of abuse in 2003

In late January, Nick Sandmann's legal team sent more than 50 letters to media outlets, individual journalists, celebrities, and Catholic dioceses and archdioceses warning of possible legal action for coverage of the incident. They did it: The Catholic high school student at the center of an encounter with a Native American tribal leader in Washington filed a $250 million defamation lawsuit Feb. 19 against The Washington Post.

Read: Covington Catholic student sues Washington Post for \$250 million

Presentation Sr. Joyce Meyer is Global Sisters Report's liaison internationally, so we relish what she brings back from her many travels. This is the latest: "We need young female theologians if women's voices are to carry on the legacy of those women who began the work of breaking through patriarchal theological barriers and to continue contributing to the theological development of our Catholic Church!"

Read: Theology colloquium brings together Asian 'Women of Wisdom and Action'

Here's an example how!

Read: Handing the pen to sisters: sister theologians in Myanmar

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.

Advertisement