

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

September 12, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Descendants of enslaved people find their roots in Sacred Heart records — records of the sacraments they received when they were the sisters' property.

Today, the sisters of the Society of the Sacred Heart are sharing their genealogical findings as part of the mission of their Committee on Slavery, Accountability and Reconciliation.

In US tour, Marie Collins exposes clerical culture behind abuse cover-up.

The Irish survivor and former member of the Pontifical Commission for the Protection of Minors is speaking in five U.S. cities, and NCR sat down to talk with her in Washington.

The 2020 election may be too late, writes Alex Mikulich. In the face of an existential threat to our democracy, it's time for sustained mass civil disobedience.

Sr. Quincy Howard sets an example: She was among 70 people arrested on Capitol Hill during the Catholic Day of Action for Immigrant Children. In a column for GSR, she shares her experience of taking action for the least of these that day in July.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*