

Opinion

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

December 17, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter, Global Sisters Report and EarthBeat. The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Public hospital doctors have been on strike in Zimbabwe, and the standoff with the government has crippled the country's health care system. Catholic hospitals are doing what they can to meet people's needs, while Catholic bishops mediate in Zimbabwe doctors' strike crisis.

While staff writer Brian Roewe was in Rome for the Synod of Bishops for the Amazon, he caught up with Tom Stang, brother of Sr. Dorothy Stang, who was killed in 2005 for her work defending the rights of poor farmers in the Amazon. As he encountered so many at the synod who loved and admired his sister, "I've experienced why Dorothy loved Brazil."

It's the tension of the season: the materialism of Santa Claus and the spirituality of Baby Jesus. In his Soul Seeing column, renowned Brazilian theologian Leonardo Boff imagines a letter left at the doors of houses and huts, from the Baby Jesus to the children there.

If we ever needed the Incarnation, we need it today, in this time of polarization and hatred, writes Sr. Nancy Sylvester. How are you living the Incarnation?

Advertisement

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.