

Opinion

by Tracy Abeln

View Author Profile

tabeln@ncronline.org

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

March 20, 2020

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed the copy editors' desks on their way to you: National Catholic Reporter, Global Sisters Report and EarthBeat.

It seems like there is coronavirus news and not coronavirus news. Of course, what writer can think to write of anything else?

Here's one: EarthBeat is still running Lenten Daily Food Reflections that can help take you out of the fatiguing news flood and into mindfulness, prayer.

Also on EarthBeat, a story about how forest destruction that accelerates climate change can also encourage the emergence of diseases. Indigenous leaders are criticizing companies for replacing forests with soy, palm and cattle plantations. Read more.

And as pandemic becomes standard fare, there are new ways to look at it and at our relationships, even to the church. Don Clemmer writes that as suspended Masses are nearly universal now, COVID-19 has prompted layers of response that bring into focus how the church is intertwined with the wider society, reliant on revenue and served by people on payrolls. Read about new ways to be church.

More from the Coronavirus Tracker, our daily round up of news and commentary on the subject:

- Michael Sean Winters on the politicalization of the crisis
- NCR Executive Editor Tom Roberts on how we're still connecting
- Houses of worship pitch in to help those left vulnerable by virus outbreak
- Sisters strengthen efforts amid coronavirus strain
- Global group of women religious superiors calls for March 22 day of prayer

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email – including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.

Advertisement